As a lifelong servant of justice and a proud member of the global law enforcement community, I stand before you with a deep sense of purpose and responsibility in seeking the honor of serving as the next President of INTERPOL.

My journey in law enforcement spans over 30 years, during which I have dedicated my career to ensuring justice, safeguarding communities, and fostering collaboration among nations. As the first female, Major General in Namibia responsible for police administration and a proud Executive Committee member of INTERPOL since 2022, I have worked tirelessly to uphold the principles that unite us in our shared mission to empower global law enforcement and create a safer world. Internationally, I have been advocating for equal African representation, INTERPOL's neutrality and gender diversity on the INTERPOL structures.

INTERPOL has always represented the power of collaboration and innovation in addressing crime that transcends borders. In our 100-year history, we have had only one female President, a symbol of progress but also a call to do more. My candidacy seeks to honor the strides we have made while boldly advancing the inclusivity and diversity that are essential to the future of global law enforcement.

MY VISION

FOR INTERPOL

Why I Believe in this vision

My experiences have shaped me into a leader who listens, learns, and acts decisively. From my early days in Namibia's police force to my role on INTERPOL's Executive Committee, I have witnessed firsthand the transformative power of collaboration. I understand the challenges faced by law enforcement agencies worldwide, and I am committed to being a voice for all nations, large and small.

I believe that the strength of INTERPOL lies in our shared commitment to justice and our collective determination to overcome the complexities of transnational crime. Together, we can build an organisation that not only protects but also inspires trust and confidence across the globe.

A Future We Build Together

As President of INTERPOL, I will dedicate myself to forging stronger partnerships, championing innovation, and ensuring that every member country feels heard and supported. Let us continue to build a safer, more equitable world where justice knows no borders and every community can thrive in peace.

Together, we can make this vision a reality. It would be my honor to lead INTERPOL into a future defined by unity, progress, and unwavering dedication to justice.

Placing your confidence in me: is placing your confidence in Namibia's efficiency, dependability and international connectivity. Namibia is a young nation, which has built a trusted brand name internationally as a reliable partner, able to get things done and deliver on what we promise.
